

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE: New Service Announcement

Health Record Services Expands Radiology Coding Practice

Orlando, Florida, July 8, 2007 – Health Record Services (HRS) is proud to announce rapid growth of their radiology coding services division for hospitals, imaging centers and faculty practices. With over 400 million diagnostic imaging procedures performed annually, organizations struggle to keep up with the back-office functions of coding and billing. HRS solves this problem by providing experienced and credentialed coders to manage coding volumes, maintain cash flow, decrease denials, and keep audit worries away. The company uses the latest in remote coding technology and employs only qualified, U.S. based personnel.

“HRS has been providing expert coding services to the healthcare industry since 1979,” comments Wendy Coplan, RHIA, President, HRS. “Today’s complexities of radiology coding are too much even for billing companies to effectively manage; it is truly a specialized job that requires specialized attention,” she concludes. In addition to coding services, HRS offers expert audits and peer-to-peer physician educational programs for clinical documentation improvement in radiology.

“With 1,000 procedures a day, using an outside coding agency was simply a good business decision. HRS gives us expert, U.S.-based coders to stay ahead and keep compliant every day,” stated one customer, the Director of Coding and Compliance at a large Midwest academic medical center faculty practice.
